PASS OF KILLIECRANKIE
SOLDIER'S LEAP

TUCK'S POST CARD

CARTE POSTALE.

By Appointment.

The Pass of Killiecrankie is one of the most popular excursions in the neighbourhood of Pitlochry, and deservedly so if only on account of the great pictorial merit of this magnificent specimen of the Scottish glen, through which the River Garry finds its way. The Soldier's Leap, a spot where the rocks on either side of the river nearly meet, derives its name from the tradition that a Highland soldier, fleeing after the battle of Killicrankie, evaded his pursuers by leaping the gap—a space of about 11 feet.
